What factors influenced results

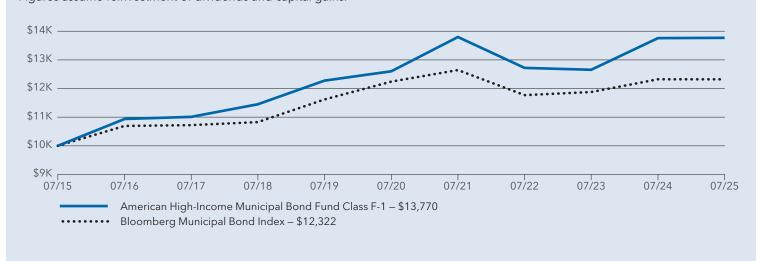

During the fund's fiscal year, municipal bond returns remained largely flat. Yields rose, ending the period near 15-year highs, driven in part by shifts in fiscal policy. The U.S. Federal Reserve cut interest rates three times in 2024, prompting a decline in short-term yields as investors sought safer assets. Meanwhile, long-term yields increased, influenced by heightened market volatility and a surge in new municipal bond issuance. This environment led to a steepening of the municipal yield curve, with 10-year AAA yields rising more than two-year yields, enhancing the appeal of longer dated maturities.

Within the fund's portfolio, most major sectors contributed positively to absolute returns. Transportation, special tax and corporate bonds were especially beneficial relative to the benchmark. Tobacco and housing debt holdings also added value.

On the other hand, education, general obligation and non-general obligation government issues detracted from relative returns. Duration and curve positioning, along with exposures to derivatives, further weighed on results.

^{*} Bond ratings, which typically range from AAA/Aaa (highest) to D (lowest), are assigned by credit rating agencies such as Standard & Poor's, Moody's and/or Fitch as an indication of an issuer's creditworthiness. In assigning a credit rating to a security, the fund looks specifically to the ratings assigned to the issuer of the security by Standard & Poor's, Moody's and/or Fitch. If agency ratings differ, the security will be considered to have received the lowest of those ratings, consistent with the fund's investment policies. Securities in the "unrated" category (above) have not been rated by a rating agency; however, the investment adviser performs its own credit analysis and assigns comparable ratings that are used for compliance with the fund's investment policies.
