Management's discussion of fund performance

The fund's Class T shares gained 12.81% for the year ended October 31, 2025. That result compares with a 13.13% gain for the S&P Target Date 2025 Index.

What factors influenced results

The U.S. fixed income market delivered strong results, with corporate bond spreads tightening to their lowest levels in nearly three decades. Although inflation rose slightly, influenced by lingering tariff effects, signs of labor market weakness and broader economic uncertainty prompted the U.S. Federal Reserve to cut interest rates in September and October 2025. U.S. equities posted substantial gains over the fund's fiscal year, rebounding from early 2025 volatility and propelling the S&P 500 Index to new all-time highs. Non-U.S. equity markets also delivered robust returns, buoyed by a weaker dollar and solid earnings in key regions.

The portfolio saw positive absolute returns over the fiscal year. Fixed income holdings, which made up the largest portion of the portfolio, increased over the period partly driven by gains in high-yield bonds. The fund's modest exposure to non-U.S. equities had considerable returns, owing in part to gains in U.K.- and eurozone-domiciled investments.

Fixed income returns lagged equities but helped to fulfill their roles seeking capital preservation and income generation. While U.S. equities provided a positive absolute return, they trailed their non-U.S. counterparts amid economic uncertainty. The lowest returning sectors for the fund included materials and health care.
