Management's discussion of fund performance

The fund's Class T shares gained 9.00% for the year ended November 30, 2024. That result compares with a 11.86% gain for the MSCI Emerging Markets Index.

What factors influenced results

During the fund's fiscal year, despite some exceptions, key emerging markets experienced growth driven by easing inflation, strong domestic demand and government stimulus. While employment weakened, the services sector and manufacturing output expanded in some major emerging economies. In India, manufacturing and construction thrived. Notably, mainland China's economy showed signs of stabilizing following supportive policy announcements.

Holdings in most equity sectors produced positive returns for the fund, with shares of information technology, utilities, financials and consumer discretionary companies particularly additive to results. Shares of companies based in emerging markets were most additive.

In terms of detractors, the fund's holdings in the real estate, energy and health care sectors saw negative returns during the period. Likewise, holdings in companies based in certain European countries, though a small portion of the portfolio, posted negative contributions.
