Management's discussion of fund performance

The fund's Class T shares gained 30.60% for the year ended November 30, 2025. That result compares with a 29.51% gain for the MSCI Emerging Markets Index.

What factors influenced results

Emerging market equities posted double-digit gains over the fund's fiscal year, fueled by a softer U.S. dollar and leadership of China, South Korea and Taiwan. Stocks across those markets – as well as South Africa, Brazil, Mexico and others – recorded strong returns, supported by resilient exports despite U.S. tariff uncertainty and the global technology surge driven by artificial intelligence. In contrast, India's market delivered muted gains, limited by steep U.S. tariffs and a weakening rupee.

Most sectors delivered gains for the fund, with financials, information technology, communication services and materials being particularly additive on an absolute basis. Returns from the industrials and health care sectors also contributed to the overall portfolio. Companies based in South China, Korea and Taiwan were likewise additive.

Conversely, holdings in the consumer staples and utilities sectors detracted from overall results. From a country perspective, investments in Indonesia detracted from the portfolio's total returns.
