Management's discussion of fund performance

The fund's Class 1A shares gained 8.10% for the year ended December 31, 2024. That result compares with a 6.74% gain for the S&P Target Date 2010 Index.

What factors influenced results

During the fund's fiscal year, U.S. economic growth remained solid, driven by strong consumer spending, despite uncertainties of the presidential election, high interest rates and a slowing labor market. In September, the U.S. Federal Reserve cut rates for the first time since 2020 and followed with additional reductions in November and December. Short-term bond yields declined while longer term yields rose.

The portfolio's focus on domestic equities benefitted returns for the period, with information technology, financials, communication services and industrials shares adding meaningfully to total return. Consumer discretionary, utilities and consumer staples holdings were also additive, though below the domestic equities' overall return.

While the fund's bond holdings provided stability and income to the fund, their positive returns were below those of the overall portfolio. Within overseas equities, materials, real estate and consumer discretionary holdings weighed on the positive impacts of the information technology and financials sectors.
