Management's discussion of fund performance

The fund's Class 1 shares gained 8.92% for the year ended December 31, 2025. That result compares with a 8.58% gain for the Bloomberg U.S. Mortgage Backed Securities Index. What factors influenced results

During the fund's fiscal year, the U.S. bond market posted strong returns. Corporate bond yields declined during the period but remained near their highest level in over 15 years. The U.S. Federal Reserve cut its policy rate three times in response to labor market weakness and economic uncertainty, pulling short-term yields lower. Meanwhile, long-term yields remained elevated amid heavy issuance and a steepening yield curve.

The fund's duration positioning was additive to results, relative to the benchmark. Security selection within agency MBS further helped the portfolio's relative returns.

Conversely, curve positioning as well as allocations to Treasuries and securitized credit weighed on results, relative to the benchmark.

Material fund changes

This is a summary of certain changes to the fund since January 1, 2025. For more complete information, you may review the fund's next prospectus, which we expect to be available by March 1, 2026 at capitalgroup.com/AFIS-literature-1 or upon request at (800) 421-4225.

During the reporting period, the fund enhanced its disclosure regarding its use of future delivery contracts. When the fund purchases certain types of future delivery contracts, these investments can increase the fund's market exposure because the value of securities the fund contracts to purchase is reflected each day in determining the fund's net asset value and the fund is not required to pay for or obtain, respectively, the securities until settlement date. This could result in the fund being subject to leverage risk, as the value of the fund's investments may exceed its net assets.

Changes in and disagreements with accountants

On December 10, 2025, PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP ("PwC") was dismissed and Deloitte & Touche LLP was appointed as the fund's independent registered public accounting firm for the fiscal year ending December 31, 2026 audit. The change in the fund's independent registered public accounting firm was approved by the fund's board of trustees, including a majority of the independent trustees, upon recommendation of the audit committee, as part of a broader effort to update board oversight and fund operations. At no point during the fund's fiscal years ended December 31, 2024 and December 31, 2025 and the subsequent interim period through February 13, 2026, were there any disagreements between management and PwC on any matter of accounting principles or practices, financial statement disclosure or auditing scope or procedure.
